

Priority Populations

A closer look at what our community members experience and how they want to fix it.

The Prince William Health District organized listening sessions with priority community groups based on opioid needs assessment findings. Involving community members to share personal stories helps identify root causes of opioid issues and tailor solutions to those most in need, leading to effective programs influenced by those directly impacted.

Care Coordination

Key challenges include healthcare access, culturally tailored education, accessibility, and stigma. To enhance our collaborative efforts, we can build connections between schools and families, create a resource guide for youth, and boost peer recovery support within the opioid ecosystem to improve care coordination.

"There's a very small window when individuals are ready to quit using and we need to get them signed up for immediate services. We miss that small window more and more because we don't have the resources available."
